

Resurrection City Meets No Housing Standards but Govt. Says It's Powerless

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, which is in charge of the Resurrection City project, says it has no power to enforce housing standards in the project.

The project, which is a health, fire, safety or police problem to take steps, Eastman said.

"But we could only recommend action to the Interior Department. We could not take action ourselves."

The agreement reached between the Park Service and the campaign's leaders provides that no costs of the camp-in will be paid by the federal government or by the taxpayers of the District of Columbia. The campaign relies for its housing, food and other outlays on volunteer work and private donations of money and services.

However, the campaign leaders have not yet made good on their agreement with the Park Service to connect the camp with existing sewer lines and water mains underground, largely because of downpours of rain and shortages of money and skilled manpower.

Portable chemical toilets are being used and water is supplied from some fire hydrants and standpipes and a water truck which visits daily. Some showers have been installed.

Permit Issued

Interior's National Park Service issued a permit to the Poor People's Campaign to use the site. It acted under the 1916 law that created the Park Service and gave it authority to "grant privileges, leases, and permits for the use of land for the accommodation of visitors."

The permit is not for camping out on national park land, however. It was issued under the regulations covering "parades and public gatherings." The Park Service in effect views Resurrection City as a demonstration, not a campsite.

When asked whether the cited regulations allow the construction of acres of A-frame shelters, Bernard R. Meyer, assistant solicitor for the Interior Department, said the Park Service has such discretion.

The only building permit required, Meyer said, was the demonstration permit issued. "This (the camp-out in the capital) is part of the kind of demonstration they are having," he said. "We knew the plan when we considered the application."

The District of Columbia's public affairs officer, Sam Eastman, verified that Washington's building code, health rules, truancy laws and welfare regulations do not apply on the federal site.

Explains Role

"Our role is to watch the operation and if something develops, we'll take action," Eastman said.

SIGNED WITH BLOOD

CAIRO (AP) — The weekly magazine Roz el Youssef reported 12,000 Egyptians have applied for membership in the Palestinian guerrilla organization Al Fatah to fight Israel, and two signed with blood. It said the applicants are mostly students, intellectuals and ex-soldiers.

Fear Flu Outbreak

Some concern over a possible outbreak of influenza has been felt by the D. C. Health Department, and it has begun vaccinating the campers.

"But if we felt Resurrection City should shut down for health reasons, we could only recommend such action," Eastman said.

As visitors, the camp's children are not subject to the compulsory school attendance laws.

Our role is to watch the operation and if something develops, we'll take action, Eastman said.

Sopwith Camel Plane Auctioned for $40,000

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A Maurice Farman MF11 two place pusher biplane, a Fokker D.VII biplane, and a Curtiss Gulfhawk biplane once owned by the late stunt flyer Al Williams.

More than 500 persons—Air Force officers, aircraft and auto designers, flying enthusiasts and private collectors—attended the auction in the movie land museum of the air at Orange County airport.

The planes were part of a collection assembled by two movie stunt pilots, Frank Tailman and the late Paul Mantz. They were sold last year to two Nebraska firms, Rosen-Novak Auto Co. of Omaha and Morrison Quirk Grain Co. of Hastings.

Phoned in Advance

Ten of the bids were in five figures, but by far the highest was that of J. W. Middendorf II, a private collector, of New York City. His telephoned-in advance offer for the hump-backed little biplane, believed the last in repairable condition, beat out all competitors.

Among the disappointed rivals for the Sopwith—decorated with a cutout of Snoopy in the cockpit—was Gustav Hultkower of New York.

Hultkower stopped just short of $40,000, but went on to pay a total of $96,000 for six other World War I craft. He said they were for a museum soon to be opened by his firm, Aeroflex Corp., in Andover, N.J.

Three planes brought $20,000.
